CONCERNED?

Ted Risingsun is an American Indian. Ted Risingsun is an exalcoholic who knows the sorrows of his people. Ted Risingsun is also a Mennonite pastor who is convinced that the Christian faith has something specific to say to the American Indian and modern man.

The Student Association Lecture Committee will host Ted Risingsun on (Wednesday, May 8th). He will have dinner in the refectory and will speak in the Coffee Shop, beginning at 7:00 P.M.

Mr. Risingsun, as a tribal leader, is a social-political activist. He believes that the Indian spiritual needs cannot be met without ministering to their social-political situation. At this time the Northern Cheyenne are deeply involved in an extensive and expensive legal battle. Peabody Coal Company has coal leases which will strip their reservation and leave no adequate provision for reclaiming land and mineral rights.

All who are concerned with the rights and discontent of today's American Indian, all who are interested in the tribal life situation of this populice, all who wondered what the church might have said to Wounded Knee should plan to attend this lecture—to listen to and dialogue with Ted Risingsun.

NEW FACULTY FOR FALL

Currently, the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg has filled one of three vacant positions for the 1974-75 academic year. Beginning September, 1974, Dr. Thomas E. Ridenhour, Sr. will be the new assistant professor of homilectics at Gettysburg.

Dr. Ridenhour received an A.B. degree with honors in History from Davidson College in 1960. He attended Yale Divinity School, 1960-1961, under the auspices of a Rockefeller Brothers Theological (con't page 2)

Fellowship. He received his. B.D. (Cum Laude) from the Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary in 1965. Dr. Ridenhour received his Ph.D. in Religion from Duke University. The title of his dissertation was The Old Testament and the Patriarchal Traditions. Dr. Ridenhour has also been Pastor of the Lutheran Chruch of the Resurrection from August 1, 1969 to the present.

The two remaining posts are: a Black Professor for the Washing-ton House of Studies, and a person to teach Church History. At the present time, there is no one being considered for the Washington post, but the vacancy in Church is being filled temporary by Dr. Everett Arden and Dr. Olson. Dr. Arden comes to us from L.S.T.C., while Dr. Olson comes from Mt. Airy. Dr. Arden will be helping with Enduring Problems, while Dr. Olson will be teaching Themes in Classical Lutheranism.

COMMUNITY IMAGE DEAD?

by Robert Dealey

In the past, there has been some controversy over the concept of "community" at Gettysburg. I believe that the community image is dead, and propose that a family image be fostered in its stead. I would like to use Nathan Ackerman's principles on the dynamics of family functioning (from Psychodynamics of Family Life) for a model, and raise some issues presented by this new image.

The imprinciple is psychological identy. This identity subsumes strivings, expectations, and values. As with any identity it also includes roles, etc. Possible issues are: What is my identity at Gettysburg? The town's perception of the Seminary vs. the Seminary's perception of its own image. How does a single student acquire his identity?

(con't next col.)

The second principle is stability of behavior, and it is expressed in three ways. (A) The continuity of identity in time -once a student has an identity, how is it maintained? (B) The control of conflict (I personally am opposed to the term "control", because of its perjorative connotations. However, I cannot think of a better term). Are the guiding principles of "Love of God, and love of Man" enough, or do we need something else? (C) The capacity to change, learn, and achieve further development; adaptability and complementarity in new role relationships -- If any community did exist on campus, it was stagnant.

The family is a closely-knit unit whose structure should be free enough to allow growth and change, but stable enough to foster identity. A family is less anonymous than a community, and there is much more "core" person-to-person interaction within a family. For those reasons, I propose a new family image for Gettysburg.

Response to this article is invited. Yo TABLE TALK

BIMINI by Beverley Kautz

You gripped my hand in fear as we raced down the run-way and lifted off but I fairly hung out the window in anticipation.

I squeezed my eyes shut and pressed my hands together as our plane screamed onto the runway, its engines reversed.

We are like that. You resist the adventure. I fear its end-ing.

Attention Juniors: C.P.E. will take care of you!

Or maybe you will take care of it?

* * * * EDITORIAL COMMENT

We would like to thank Bob Dealey for getting the Table Talk back on its feet.
I say that because from last years' comments it was off its feet for a while. Next year we hope to continue at least every other week issues, probably to begin in the middle of the week. What the Table Talk is, is up to the student body because if we have no article's we have no issue. It is up to the student's to hand in.

We have tried a few new things in this issue. If you like them and want to keep them
you must support us; Classified and Notices are examples. If you have suggestions we can only find out if you tell us.

So please support your paper, only one last comment, The knew editer cann't spelll sew please bare with us untill that arte is lerned.
